Dear Madame President,

As part of a discussion with Executive Vice President Virkkunen at the World Economic Forum in Davos earlier this year, I was glad to hear more about the Commission's ambitious plans to create safe digital spaces and further protect minors online. Particularly, your commitment to do so through solutions that uphold strong privacy protections and the security of users' devices.

This is a goal we very much share at Apple, where our profound commitment to user safety, privacy and security means we are continuously enhancing the trusted, industry-leading tools we offer to help parents protect their kids. Next week we will be making several announcements in this area - ones that I would welcome the opportunity to share more details with you about ahead of the G7 summit in Evian-les-Bains, where I understand this issue will be discussed by you and other leaders.

I hope that a call will be possible, and I look forward to being able to discuss this very important agenda. My team is available to support in finding a mutually suitable time to speak.

Yours sincerely,
